

Digital Explorations for Teaching and Writing

National Writing Project Site: <http://www.nwp.org>

Sign up for NWPinteractive

--go to <http://www.nwp.org/>
--on middle right, click Join NWPi
(write down you user information)

Explore the NWP site

--click on National Programs link (explore Special Networks on the right)
--click Resources and explore some of the Resource Topics on the right

Signing the Guest Book in the 2008 E-Anthology

--login to NWPi
--click the "Go to 2008 E-Anthology"

Digital information and communication is changing the way we read, the way we write, and the way we think. Is it changing what we teach? Is it changing how we teach?

Other Resources:

TeachersTeachingTeachers.org

<http://www.teachersteachingteachers.org/>

Paul Allison and Chris Sloan (and others) meet each Wed. night to talk about teaching with technology.

YouthVoices.net

<http://www.youthvoices.net/>

A collaborative social network for middle school and high school students from across the country. Open for you to use with your students.

Miguel Guilin's Edublog Around the Corner (SAISD Instructional Technology Director)

<http://www.edsupport.cc/mguhlin/>

Web 2.0 Writing Tools

<http://www.accd.edu/sac/english/lirvin/cchome/webwriting.htm>

The SAWP Connection: an online community for us

<http://sanantoniowritingproject.ning.com/>